

Human Sciences Encounters in Phnom-Penh Researcher Profil

Philip Taylor

Philip Taylor is an Australian anthropologist who specializes on the religion, ethnic groups and environment of the Mekong delta. He has lived and worked in Vietnam and Cambodia for over five years and speaks Vietnamese, Khmer and French. He is the author and editor of seven books and many refereed articles and chapters on contemporary Vietnamese society. As Senior Fellow in the Department of Anthropology at the Australian National University, he supervises postgraduate students and is Editor of the Asia-Pacific Journal of Anthropology.